

The Amani Circle

Community. Connection. Reflection.
A safe space for school social workers.

What is The Amani Circle?

Amani means peace - a grounding, restorative peace - that creates space for honesty, reflection, and growth.

The Amani Circle is a dedicated space for school social workers to pause, process, and strengthen both their professional practice and personal well-being.

In a profession that gives so much, this is a space designed to give back to you.

Our Aim

To cultivate a supportive and reflective community where school social workers can:

- Feel seen and supported
- Engage in meaningful dialogue
- Strengthen professional confidence
- Build sustainable practice habits
- Grow through shared learning and collective wisdom

Why Join The Circle?

School social work is complex.
It requires expertise, resilience, and heart.

The Amani Circle is where we intentionally pause- together. Because when school social workers are supported, schools are stronger.

What You Can Expect

Connection

Authentic conversations with peers who understand the complexity of your work.

Reflection

Guided discussions that allow space to process real challenges in real time.

Learning Opportunities

Collaborative skill-building to strengthen practice strategies with practical takeaways you can apply immediately.

Growth

Personal and professional development rooted in community and purpose.
